Municipal Airport — Lucky Break for Hope

Proving Ground Makes Civilian Field Vital

The huge military airport to be constructed on Hope's new Proving Ground, reported originally in The Star June 7, and which Senator Lloyd Spencer announced yesterday would represent an investment of $1,300,000, doesn't mean the abandonment of Hope's municipal airport — quite the contrary, it means the active development of the municipal field for civilian aviation.

In an editorial June 13 this writer said:

"It is our understanding that the Proving Ground will have its own airport, restricted to military use, and probably dwarfing the civilian development of the Hope municipal airport."

"This is a rank guess, but one can imagine that if the Army means to test air bombs on the Proving Ground it would fly a squadron of bombers empty from Barksdale Field to the military airport on the Proving Ground, where they would land up with bombs, make their target practice flight, and then return empty to Barksdale."

We wrote the above on June 13—but today Senator Spencer told us it was correct. Actually, bomb-carrying planes are not allowed to fly beyond the limits of the Proving Ground, which is the reason so much land has to be condemned for this project.

And so Hope's municipal field still remains the only prospective airport where civilian craft may land, and where civilian speculators may see aircraft in action (there'll be a military fence around the Proving Ground, and you won't be able to get in—the Army isn't going to have spectators standing around where artillery shells and air-bombs are being tested).

But the Proving Ground raises one great possibility for Hope's municipal field—and that is, the possibility that our city may become a stop on a scheduled airline.

Remember that this new Proving Ground will test munitions produced throughout the Middle West and Southwest, and will bring to Hope countless official and business visitors—who will be in a hurry.

They will fly here.

High Army officials may come in government planes; but there will be others, such as manufacturers' representatives, technical men, and the like, who will either fly private planes or use the airlines.

Neither private planes nor the scheduled airlines can use the Proving Ground airport. They must look to the municipal field.

And therefore Hope is doubly fortunate that it owns today the land for a big civilian field—and it is vital that we push the development of this field to completion, through the civil aeronautics and works divisions of the government as speedily as possible.

By WILLIS THORNTON Two Cities Attack the Slum Evil

The two greatest American cities are now both engaged in a real effort to solve the slum problem. The states of New York and Illinois have passed laws aimed to stimulate redevelopment of urban areas which have "gone back," especially in New York City and Chicago.

Hitherto no city has been able to solve this problem. A central area of a city degenerates into a slum. But being central, values remain high. Private persons who might wish to buy tottering slum buildings to tear them down and replace them with modern, planned areas, cannot do so with any chance of financial success. Such slum elimination as has been accomplished has usually had to come at government expense, in short at the expense of the general taxpayer.

The new attack aims at creating conditions such that private capital will be able to function in the situation. The New York act permits all municipalities in the state to offer special inducements to private corporations to build large-scale, low-rent housing projects. The inducements include 10 years' immunity from any real property taxes in excess of those paid when the property was a slum; right to condemn property in an area needed for such a development as soon as 51 per cent of it has been acquired. On the other hand, the development corporation is subject to control by municipal planning authorities, which must approve the building and financing plans.

Chicago plan is similar, granting power of condemnation after 61 per cent of the site has been acquired. It will be highly interesting to see how these plans work out in two of the greatest centers of urban population. The problem is one which every city faces in some degree, and present conditions do not encourage any mass attack upon it by private capital. When present conditions offer no incentive that will attract investment, the only thing to do is to change some of the conditions relating to taxation, planning, condemnation, and financing, and the like.

That is what New York and Chicago are trying to do, and every city which has a blighted area will do well to study carefully the results they obtain.

Consolidation of Washington and Ozan Looms

Congress Considering Possible Bill to Reimburse Local Districts

When the federal government cuts out 37,000 acres running northwest of Hope toward Nashville this summer for construction of the War Department's 15-million-dollar Proving Ground it will probably abolish four rural schools, will reduce the tax-producing property of several districts, will raise new and grave problems in school finance, and may force an immediate wave of school consolidations in Hempstead county.

These ominous circumstances were in the air Tuesday as the new County Board of Education met for the first time in the office of County Examiner E. E. Austin at the Hempstead courthouse. Clifford Franks of Hope was elected chairman. Other members are: Albert Hulsey, Washington; Hugh Garner, Spring Hill; J. J. Bruce, Blovin, each representing his respective zone; and John H. Barrow, Ozan, representing the county-at-large.

National circumstances have proposed problems that can not be tackled by school men until the exact boundaries of the Proving Ground are finally established, and school revenues relinquished on the basis of those new boundaries.

But although no school man could say Tuesday just what the future holds, the tentative draft of the Proving Ground map as released by the War Department indicates the following results:

May Abolish 4 Schools
Abolition of four rural schools: Walnut Grove, in Redland township; Bradley, in DeRoane; Dolph, which is part of District 56 (Oakland); and Oak Grove, negro school in the Washington district.

The following parts of school districts will probably be lost for tax purposes:

West side of the Redland district; west side of the Blevins district; south side of Clow district, a large negro consolidated area; and important parts of both the Ozan and Washington school districts.

Information to The Star Tuesday is that the Proving Ground slicing northwest will shear away much of the eastern parts of both the Washington and Ozan districts, possibly requiring a consolidation of the districts in order to maintain school operations.

There is a further complication in the fact that the Washington district has bond issue outstanding (Ozan is reported clear of bonded debt). Tax-producing property will be extinguished without providing for the pro-rata part of the school debt extended against it.

New Question for Congress
Asked by The Star what emergency provision could be made for local school districts, Senator Lloyd Spencer said:

"There is no provision for federal adjustment of local school taxes lost by reason of the government's constructing such public works as the War Department's Proving Ground."

"The theory in law is that with the appearance of this big federal enterprise the surrounding land will rise in value to make good the loss. That is simply the theory—I don't say I support it."

"As a matter of fact, this is a brand new question. Heretofore it was a question which interested but few states."

"Now it interests many states—and probably something will be done about it."

"I might say that a bill is now being proposed in congressional circles to require the federal government to contribute to local government an amount equal to the amount of taxes lost by reason of federal acquisition of land. But this deliberation is just in the preliminary stage."

Senator Spencer said that where only a year or two ago none of the Arkansas delegation in the House and Senate would have cared anything about this question, today the whole delegation is vitally interested; and the question is virtually certain to be pushed to the floor of the congress for action.

When Fleet Goes Into Action, Fate of Nation May Hang on Result of a Mere Half-Hour Sea Battle

Takes Years of Planning for One Short, Sharp Fight

By TOM WOLF
NEA Service Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK — The Commander-in-Chief of the U. S. Fleet must live with the knowledge that he is the one man who could lose (or win) a war for America in one afternoon. If two giant fleets ever do battle with full strength, the fate of the nation may be decided in half an hour.

Because Germany's naval might is decidedly inferior to America's it is unlikely that a great battle between the two fleets would occur should the two nations go to war. Hit-and-run attack on lines of supply are the best strategy for the weaker naval power. The U. S. Fleet probably would be called on chiefly for blockade duty and tracking down raiders.

Nevertheless, should a combination of powers eventually go to war against the United States, it is entirely possible that there would occur the one great battle at which all the training of every sailor—from jack to admiral—is aimed and of which every man in the navy dreams.

Until the two-ocean navy becomes a reality, there is only one complete American Fleet, the Pacific Fleet. The Atlantic and Asiatic Fleets are such in name only.

The Pacific Fleet consists of three main forces—the Battle Force, the Scouting Force and the Base Force. The first two are the fighting units of the fleet, but without the third they can not operate.

Included in the Base Force are the numberless naval auxiliary vessels—repair ships, supply ships, various fleet tenders. Very vulnerable to attack, they can nonetheless accompany the fleet to some outlying base and thereby increase materially the effective range of the fighting units.

The navy's increasing need for auxiliary vessels is spotlighted in its recent acquisition of such ships as the Manhattan, Washington and America from the U. S. Lines.

The great battle for which the fleet aims does not shape up quickly. The scouting force of planes, cruisers, destroyers and particularly submarines, ferret out the enemy, egg him on to engage the battle force.

In theory, a battleship can sink anything that floats in 15 minutes if it is not sunk first itself.

Suppose the enemy accepts the challenge, elects to fight. The U. S. Fleet steams to battle in formation. The battleships are strung out single file on the line. Behind them, perhaps 100 miles to the rear, are the aircraft carriers. Directly in front of the battleships are several groups of lighter cruisers. In front of these are several clusters of heavy cruisers. The destroyers are scattered in strategic positions throughout the fleet.

Miles ahead, scouting and harassing the enemy, are the submarines.

The classic naval tactic, of which every admiral dreams, is to cross the enemy's "T"—i. e., to bring his battle line in front of, and at right angles to, the enemy's line. In this way, he can concentrate his entire fire power on the leading enemy ships, while enemy ships in the rear are out of range to fire back. Because the U. S. Navy's battleships are comparatively slow, crossing the T is the obvious maneuver for faster enemy ships, though this will be increasingly hard to do as the fast new battlewagons go into service.

To offset this maneuver, the Commander of the U. S. Fleet must use his cruisers and destroyers to head off the enemy, prevent it from crossing in front of the U. S. battle line.

The great battle is about to take place. The air is filled with planes. The heavy cruisers have engaged the enemy's lighter boats. Light cruisers are driving at enemy destroyers. The destroyers dart in and out, launching torpedoes, dropping depth charges, screening the U. S. battle force with

Fire Quickly Put Out at Basket Plant

A small fire at the Hope Basket Company early Sunday morning was quickly extinguished by the Hope Fire Department before the flame could cause any serious damage.

"With a deafening roar, the ship's guns speak in unison. Thirty-five thousand tons of steel battleship skid sideways..."

U. S. Position Is Unchanged

Wells States Robin Moor Sinking 'Violation'

WASHINGTON —(P)— Undersecretary of State Sumner Wells Tuesday said the government's basic charges against Germany for the sinking of the Robin Moor were "unchanged by the arrival of 35 missing survivors at Capetown, South Africa."

Wells said that with evidence available, received from survivors who landed at Brazil last week, and a cabled summary expected on the testimony of those at Capetown, the government soon "would be in a position to reach a final decision on the action to be taken."

Asked if the government's position that the submarine violated international law was unchanged by the arrival at Capetown of the remaining survivors, Wells replied that it was "identical."

He said the American consul at Capetown had been instructed to take cable a summary from the survivors and he added that evidence already received from Brazil was considered sufficient and already under consideration.

He did not indicate what action would be taken but it was considered that a stern protest would be launched.

Fair Group Committees

Finance, Executive Committees Are Appointed

The Executive Committee of the Hempstead County Fair met over the week-end and appointed the following Finance Committee:

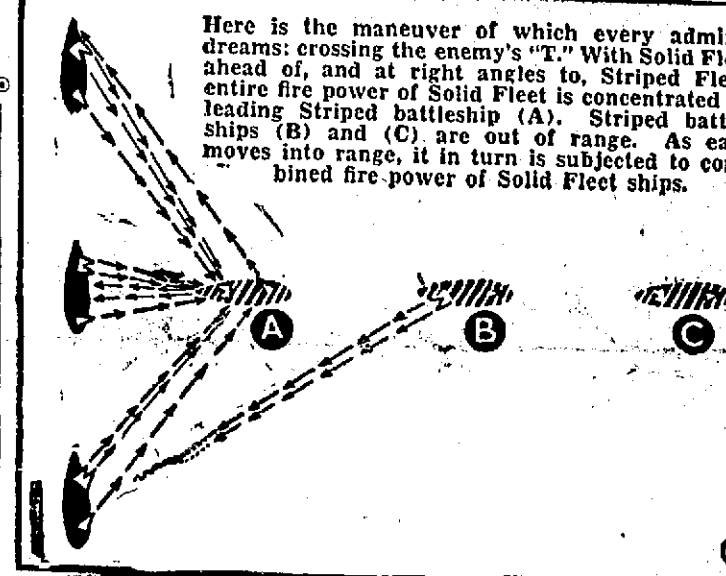

Henry Haynes, Cecil Dennis, E. O. Wingfield, R. L. Broach, Luther Holman, Ed Ward, M. S. Bates and Lyman Armstrong.

The following members were added to the Executive Committee: W. M. Sparks, Buford Poe, Judge Fred Luck, Mrs. Shirley Stewart, Mrs. O. D. Hodnett, B. E. McMahon, George Ware and T. P. Boyd.

The committee voted to ask the business men in the county to contribute funds to pay premiums on farm products, women's exhibits and other departments as the State will contribute to premiums on livestock only. The Finance Committee will meet Wednesday night of this week to consider ways and means of securing these funds.

The Fair Catalog cannot be published until it is definitely known how much money will be available from the state and from other sources to pay premiums so it will not go to the printer until about August.

Some parts of South Carolina are 100 miles farther north than some parts of North Carolina.

Here is the maneuver of which every admiral dreams: crossing the enemy's "T." With Solid Fleet ahead of, and at right angles to, Striped Fleet, entire fire power of Solid Fleet is concentrated on Striped battleship (A). Striped battleships (B) and (C) are out of range. As each moves into range, it in turn is subjected to combined fire power of Solid Fleet ships.

Ban on Oil Export Asked

Shipments Stopped to Protect East Coast Shortage

WASHINGTON —(P)— A complete ban on the export of oil from the East coast by individuals without government approval was proposed Tuesday by Secretary Ickes in a letter to petroleum groups.

The action followed the stoppage Monday of a 240,000-gallon shipment of oil from Philadelphia to Japan because of the petroleum shortage on the Atlantic seaboard.

The letters sent out by Secretary Ickes and R. K. Davies, assistant petroleum coordinator, said:

"In view of the shortage of petroleum and petroleum products in the Atlantic coast area it is imperative that the drainage of stock from this region be avoided and I suggest that no further sale or shipment be made without government approval."

"This procedure, his aide said, was taken to make petroleum and petroleum products available adequately and continuously at the proper place and to make sure of the maintenance of a ready and adequate supply."

The Council voted to ask the city to donate $200 to purchase additional grounds for the summer.

Shakeup Near for Hospital

Dr. A. C. Kolb Assumes Post of Superintendent

LITTLE ROCK—An expected shakeup in the personnel of the State Hospital for Nervous Diseases, launched with the ousting last week of former Superintendent R. E. Rowland, was believed headed for a climax at a meeting of the institution's board of trustees at the hospital here Monday.

Governor Adkins went into an executive board session with the board members, leading support to the belief that the personnel shake-up will be settled.

The governor refused to discuss purposes of his attendance at the board session, but he indicated that a statement would be forthcoming later.

Board members also refused to comment on possible changes but backed the governor's comment that a statement would be released after the session. One board member, who asked that his name be withheld, admitted that personnel matters were being discussed with the governor, and said that it is hoped that the whole matter can be settled soon.

Dr. A. C. Kolb, Hope physician, appointed by the board to succeed Dr. Rowland last month, Monday took over his duties as superintendent. He was called into the session early and was closeted with the governor and board members all morning.

Reach Capuzzo and Beat Back Counter-Thrust

British Take German and Italian Forces by Surprise Tuesday

CAIRO —(P)— British troops in a surprise move made an initial penetration Tuesday as far as Fort Capuzzo, across the Egyptian border in Libya, and then beat back Axis counter-attacks, reinforced by troops rushed from Tobruk, the Middle East command announced.

The war bulletin said that heavy losses were inflicted on German and Italian troops which repeatedly assaulted the Imperial forces.

Fort Capuzzo is opposite Salum where recent fierce fighting has developed into a major battle.

In East Africa the communiqué said British forces captured an Italian rear guard division at Lakemti, in southern Ethiopia, taking 200 prisoners, and four guns.

In the Assab area it was reported that six Italian officers and 180 men were captured.

The British described the offensive as still a local one for the moment, but stated it was developing.

The German official news agency DNB said that up to noon Tuesday Britain had lost 100 armored motor units and said the situation was developing favorably for the Germans and Italians. A Berlin radio broadcast heard in London said British tank losses totaled the strength of a regiment.

The German high command was less specific, saying British tank losses "were increased," and that fighting continued with the use of strong forces on both sides. It asserted that Axis airmen blasted British troop concentrations.

The Italian high command said Britain sustained considerable losses of men and machines and reported 11 planes shot down.

D. A. R. Chapters Celebrate Flag Day in Prescott

The John Cain chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution observed Flag Day, Saturday, by motorizing to Prescott for a luncheon at the Hotel Loda, which was attended by the members of the Hope chapter, the Lone Star and the Texarkana chapter of Texarkana, and the hostess chapter, the Matthew Locke chapter of Prescott.

A large banquet table was arranged in the main dining room of the hotel for the occasion. The patriotic motif was observed in the decoration and appointments. Flanking the central arrangements of summer blossoms were crystal chandeliers holding red, white, and blue tapers.

Mrs. J. A. Gale, regent of the General Matthew Locke chapter presiding over the meeting and introduced the following distinguished guests: Mrs. Phillip Fall Crutcher, Pine Bluff state regent of the DAR; Mrs. W. H. Arnold, Texarkana, honorary state regent; Judge William H. Arnold, Texarkana, past president of the Sons of the American Revolution; and Dr. E. P. J. Garrot, guest speaker.

Mrs. J. G. Martindale, regent of the John Cain chapter presented the members of her chapter and introduced Mrs. Charles A. Haynes, organizing regent of the Hope chapter, was presented for vice-regent of Arkansas and her candidacy was unanimously endorsed by the assembly.

Mrs. Vernon Glass Sr., regent of the Lone Star chapter presented members of her chapter present, and Mrs. Smith, past regent of the Texarkana chapter introduced members of her chapter.

An invitation was extended to the chapters to meet in Texarkana for the next flag day celebration. The program for the luncheon was opened with an invocation by Miss Mamie Twitchell of the John Cain chapter. The Flag Day address was made by the Rev. E. P. J. Garrot of Prescott.

As the Hope chapter's part on the program, Martha Houston sang "God Bless America" by Berlin and "When I Have Stung My Song" by Ernest Charles. She was accompanied by Claudia Agee.

Hope members attending were Mrs. J. G. Martindale, Mrs. J. I. Battle, Mrs. J. M. Houston, Mrs. R. E. Cain, Miss Mamie Twitchell, and Mrs. Charles Locke of Ozan.

In the absence of the president, Mrs. J. R. Cullipier presided at the meeting and opened with a prayer. After a very short business meeting a clever quiz program was held.

Sikes Knocks Out Al Reis

LITTLE ROCK — Landing a left hook that would have stunned a steer, Bob Sikes slugged Al Reis, handsome Indianapolis heavyweight, unconscious in the middle of the second round at the North Little Rock rodeo arena Monday night. Until then, it was a close fight with the Indian holding a slight shade.

In a way, Bob's blow was a desperate punch. The Southern heavyweight clump blinked under the steam of a right uppercut and before he could right himself, caught another in the same spot. Then, Sikes weaved to his left out of a crouch, hooked his left wrist and contacted Al's chin. Sikes weighed 190; Reis 198.

His eyes crossed, Reis swayed as if carried by a strong wind and struck the canvas on his back. For a moment, it looked like Al would roll off the apron of the ring. He partially was revived after the count and began to toss, trying to arise from instinct. Reis was out cold and he never knew what hit him.

Reis had a little the better of it in the somewhat tame first round. Al landed a light overhead right to the head. All of Sikes' socks were short, although Bob managed to get in a couple of blows to the body. Reis boxed nicely but it all was pounded out of him a couple of minutes later.

Capital Needs More Space

Washington Population Increase Is 70 Per Cent

By JACK STINNETT
WASHINGTON — Visitors to Washington-under-unlimited emergency almost invariably mutter "All is confusion."

I have written about the growth of the capital city under national defense before, but it is a continuing story becoming more amazing each day and month.

It is something Washingtonians eat and sleep. It is a more general topic of conversation than the war or weather. And it is not surprising that this is true or that the casual visitor thinks this a city of utter confusion. Since the census was taken last year it is estimated that Washington has increased its population 10 per cent or almost 70,000 persons. This does not take into consideration the thousands who have settled in the suburban towns in Maryland and Virginia—Alexandria, Arlington, Chevy Chase, Bethesda, Silver Spring and others. It doesn't take into consideration the thousands of new visitors—persons who have discovered a new interest in government and want to see how the whole she-bang works; relatives and friends of the numberless new defense workers; business men here to confer on defense contracts; soldiers and sailors from nearby stations.

Rooms Hard to Find

What any visitor is likely to discover first is that even if it is an off-week, he may have trouble getting accommodations at any of the city's 28 first-class hotels unless he ### has made reservations a week or more in advance.

If he is out from 7:30 to 9:30 in the morning or 3:30 to 6 in the afternoon, he'll buck the push of federal worker traffic that reaches its peak in those hours (staggered hours seem only to have spread the mood for eating or drinking, he'll find the restaurants and bars filled to capacity—and probably lines of waiting customers in the former.

If he wants a taxi, he'll find there are periods of the day and night or anytime during a storm when it is practically impossible to get one. A taxi company official tells me that a year ago there were 5,000 cabs on the streets of Washington, but now ### there are only 3,700.

Drivers, working on the zone-rate basis (as all Washington cabs do) find the traffic slows them down so they can't make what they feel they should.

If a visitor wants to go shopping, all he can do is join the mass movement of humanity on F street from Seventh to Fourteenth and pray that it will slow up enough to let him work his way in when he comes to his store. The other half of this problem is trying to find a clerk.

Space Finder Extraordinary

These are not exaggerations and I am sure that the first person who would bear me out would be Clay J. Guthridge who, although he is concerned with only one phase of what is happening to Washington, knows more about it than anyone else. It's his personal headache. Few government workers have ever heard of him, but he has affected the daily routines of more of them than any other man here. A quiet, bespectacled, middle-aged man, Guthridge is chief of planning and space control of the public buildings administration in the Federal Works Agency.

It's because of Mr. Guthridge that the new Social Security building is occupied mostly by the Office of Production Management (the Knudsen Hillman set-up), the Office of Emergency Management (the over-all defense organization) and Army Ordnance . . . and much of the Social Security clerical staff is in Baltimore where two warehouses are serving as temporary quarters.

It's because of him that the new Railroad Retirement building was handed over to the army. With almost every inch of available space now occupied, defense workers are being added at the rate of 4,000 a month (in Washington). Guthridge's job is to find space for them and he has against him the competition of such organizations as the British purchasing commission, which has taken over one floor of the Willard Hotel, three apartment buildings, a private mansion. Aside from the greatly increased embassy staff, the British are said to have about 2,000 employees in Washington.

'Temporary' Since 1917

The war and navy departments now are using old buildings that were called "temporary" in the World War. They are aged frame tinder-boxes where one of the strictest office rules is against smoking.

The palatial new war department building is nearing completion and the new five-acre navy office building bordering Arlington cemetery in Virginia will be finished in a few months. These may take care of ten or eleven thousand workers. Guthridge will tell you that that's hardly a drop out of the bucket. And it isn't.

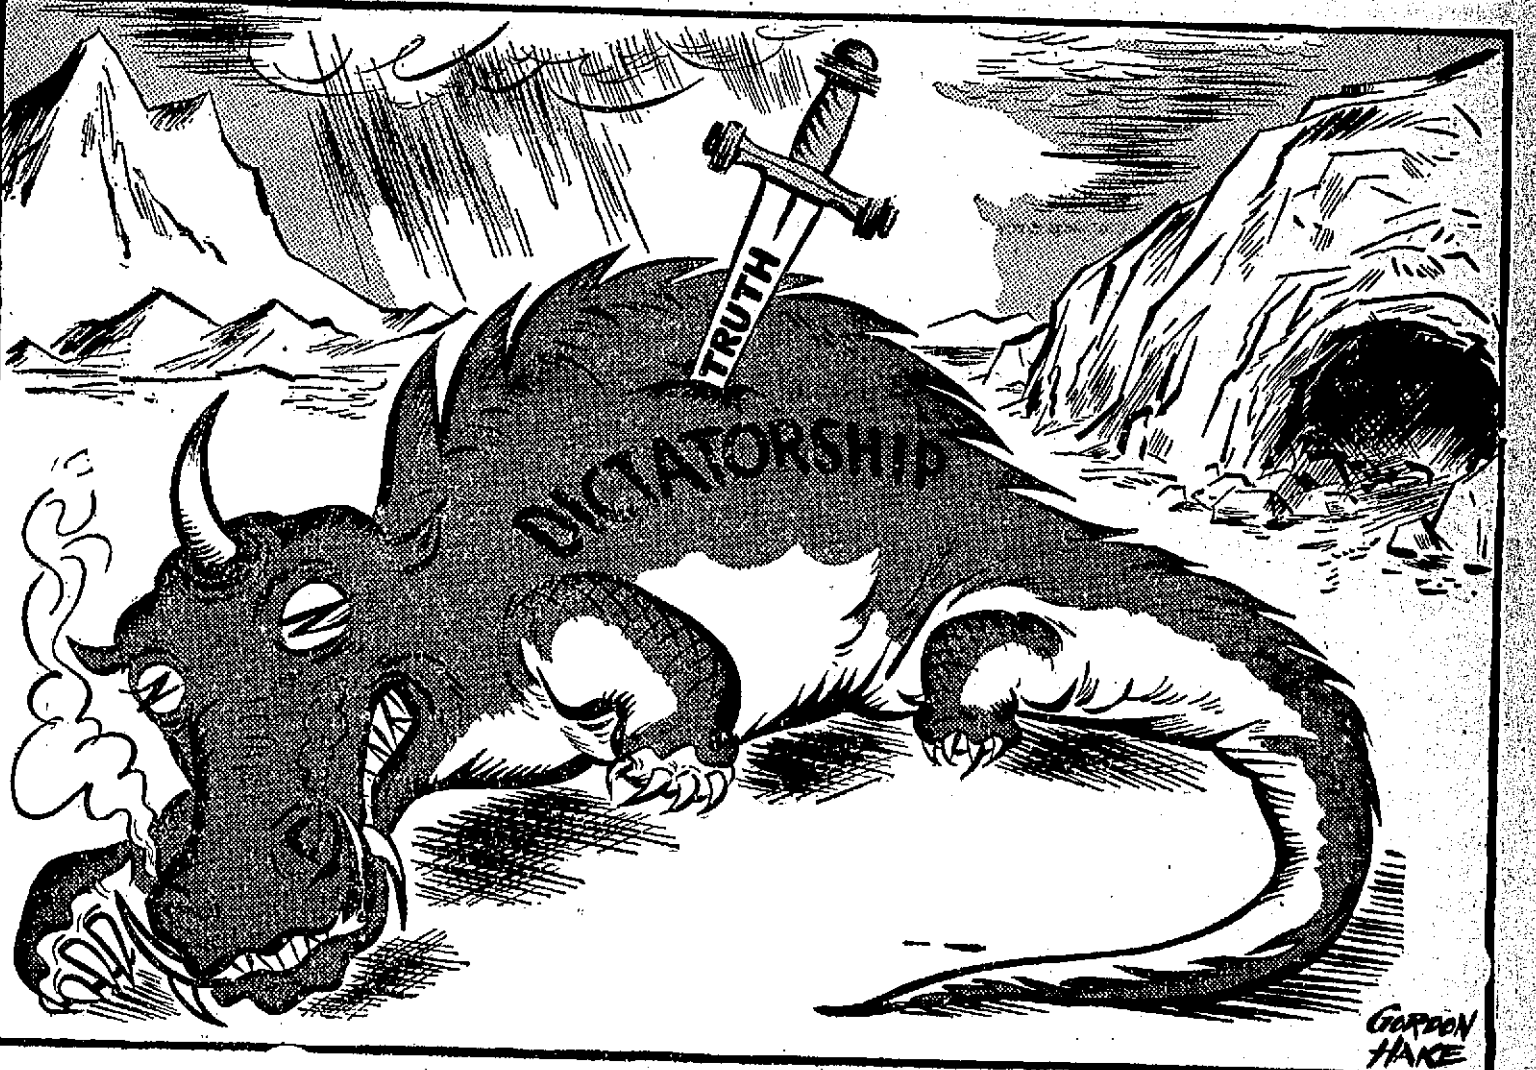

Last week, army and navy alone added 800 new civilian employees here.

That's what is happening to Washington these days.

DRAGON HUNTING

BY NORMAN CHANDLER, CHAIRMAN, NEWSPAPER PUBLISHERS COMMITTEE

GET this little thought into your mind: A dictator—or any government by any name—never forbids freedom of thought and speech except from fear of the TRUTH.

It is the TRUTH that hurts. With the press and public speech completely FREE, a lie is quickly exposed.

We ought to keep these facts right up in front of us. For, every so often, even in free America, you hear agitation for "making" the newspapers or the radio "agree" with this or that group. Notice one thing: In every case it is some person or group anxious to have things

ITS way when such agitation occurs.

Perhaps it isn't always the newspapers' own sleuthing which turns up public or private malefactors. But it is generally FROM NEWSPAPERS that YOU get the news!

That is the job of a newspaper—to slay dragons or furnish aid and support to the dragon hunters. Naturally, the DRAGON doesn't like it.

Hitler didn't take over all Germany's newspapers because they were FAILING to report facts and honest opinion. He took them over for the OPPOSITE reason. They were "in disagreement with the policy of the State."

Since he WAS "the State," that only means the press disagreed with HIM.

Over here, we set our papers to the task of watching carefully for any signs that OUR power, the power of the PEOPLE, is being taken over by any group, whether it calls itself "government," or "business," or "labor," or the "Women's Pink Tea Club."

We value our LIBERTY, our RIGHTS; and we want to know ALL ABOUT anyone who dares to threaten our right to hear any side of any argument which concerns the public interest. We want the TRUTH. We think we can tell truth from lies if there's REAL freedom of expression.

Any time a newspaper fails to serve the PUBLIC, that newspaper is duly punished; many an EX-publisher can testify to the TRUTH of that!

Over 300 leading newspaper publishers join together to bring you this weekly message about the function of the press in a free nation. Newspaper Publishers Committee, 420 Lexington Avenue, New York.
